

BRIEF INFORMATION

ON THE NEW CONTRIBUTION OF PHD DISSERTATION

1. Name of the dissertation: “Job creation support policy for Vietnamese workers working overseas when repatriate”

2. Major: Economic management

3. Full name of PhD Candidate: Vu Thi Yen

Student No: 16BD0410007

4. Code: 62.34.04.10

5. Full name of supervisors:

Supervisor No. 1: Assoc. Prof. Dr. Bui Huu Duc

Supervisor No. 2: Dr. Chu Thi Thuy

6. New contributions of the dissertation

6.1. Academics and interpretation

(i) The dissertation has systematized fundamental theoretical issues about the policies that support job creation for workers in general and for workers working overseas when repatriate in particular. At the same time, building a theoretical framework on job creation support policies for workers working overseas when repatriate.

(ii) The dissertation has established a system of principles to evaluate the result and the influence of job creation support policies for workers working overseas when repatriate.

(iii) In addition, the dissertation also identifies and clarifies the fundamental elements that have direct as well as indirect influence on the development and deployment of job creation support policies for workers working overseas when repatriate.

6.2. In practical

(i) The dissertation studies the international experience of job creation support policies for workers working overseas when repatriate, acting as a foundation for managers, policy makers to create models for job creation support policies that are suitable for Vietnamese workers working overseas when repatriate.

(ii) Based on the established theoretical framework, the dissertation analyses the deployment state of job creation support policies for Vietnamese workers working overseas when repatriate in 05 surveyed regions including: Nghe An province, Thanh Hoa province, Ha Tinh province, Hai Duong province, Nam Dinh province, at the same time points out the limitations and weaknesses in the implementation process of these policies in reality and also indicates the causes of those shortcomings.

(iii) The dissertation builds a framework model to assess the impact of job creation support policies for Vietnamese workers working overseas when repatriate. The results of empirical survey points out that job creation support policies for Vietnamese workers working overseas when repatriate have a positive effect on the decent job search of those workers; at the same time job creation support policies also have a positive impact by increasing the income of Vietnamese workers working overseas when repatriate; and decreasing the number of Vietnamese workers working overseas fleeing or not returning home on time.

(iv) Based on the analysed result and the state assessment of job creation support policies for Vietnames workers working overseas when repatriate in different surveyed regions, the thesis proposes perspectives, directions and solutions to improve job creation support policies for Vietnames workers working overseas when repatriate.

The recommendation solutions of this thesis are feasible and appropriate for the current situation and the overall context of the socio-economic development strategy of the State and the Party.

6.3. Solutions and recommendations

Based on the fundamental theoretical framework, the state of job creation support policies for Vietnames workers working overseas when repatriate, the context and orientation of Vietnam to send workers abroad to work, the viewpoint and the direction to complete the job creation support policies for Vietnames workers working overseas when repatriate, the dissertation proposes several specific solutions, in particular:

(i) Improving the labour market development policy; (ii) Improving the preferential credit policy; (iii) Improving the vocational training and retraining; (iv) Improving the policy to support entrepreneurship. Of which, each solution group clearly points out the role and responsibility of each subject participating in the policy planning and implementing process, which are: central state management agencies, local state management agencies, labor export enterprises, other enterprises and workers, ...; (v) Other solutions are: increasing the linkage between state management agencies and relevant organisations and units when establishing and implementing job creation support policies for Vietnamese workers working overseas when repatriate; and applying information technology and e-government during the deployment process of job creation support policies for Vietnames workers working overseas when repatriate.

In addition, the thesis also proposes a number of recommendations for the subject such as: labor export enterprise, other enterprise and workers, ...

SIGNATURE OF SCIENCE SUPERVISORS

Supervisor 1

(Full name and signature)

Supervisor 2

(Full name and signature)

PhD CANDIDATE

Assoc. Prof. Dr..Bui Huu Duc

Dr. Chu Thi Thuy

Vu Thi Yen